KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INSIGHTS NEWSLETTER | JANUARY 27, 2025

WEEK 3 – LEGISLATURE TACKLING TAXES, HOUSING, AND VOTER INTEGRITY

Kansas lawmakers take steps to address some of the state's most pressing issues, from property tax relief to election integrity and affordable housing solutions. With legislative committees advancing key bills and engaging in critical debates, this session has the opportunity to reshape the fiscal and social landscape of Kansas.

PROPERTY TAX REDUCTIONS TOP AGENDA

Kansas lawmakers seek to advance significant property tax relief measures, with both House and Senate committees currently considering legislation.

The Senate Assessment and Taxation Committee last week approved multiple bills, now awaiting full Senate debate:

- SCR 1603: Proposes a constitutional amendment to cap annual property value increases for tax purposes at 3%. If passed by two-thirds of the Legislature, voters would decide its fate in a special election on November 4, 2025. Critics argue it may not significantly lower taxes. Supporters see it as necessary to curb rising property valuations.
- SB 10: Exempts certain personal property from property taxation, including off-road vehicles, watercraft, and trailers. Projected to reduce state revenue by $419,000 annually.
- SB 35: Eliminates the 1.5-mill statewide property tax dedicated to maintenance of state buildings. The $81 million annual revenue loss would be offset through State General Fund transfers and adjusted for inflation.

The House Taxation Committee began reviewing HB 2011, to lower the statewide school property tax levy from 20 to 18.5 mills. Key details include:

- The change would reduce school funding by $823 million over five years, with estimated annual losses ranging from $67.4 million in 2026 to $266.7 million in 2030.

- Advocates including the Kansas Farm Bureau and Kansas Livestock Association support the bill for its broad-based property tax relief.
- Education stakeholders, such as the Kansas Association of School Boards, emphasize the need for “backfill” provisions to maintain stable funding. Without such measures, base state aid per pupil could drop by $100 in 2026 and $169 in 2027.

Both committees grappled with balancing tax relief with impacts on state and local budgets, particularly for education and infrastructure funding. This quest for balance will color debates going forward during the session.

NONCITIZEN VOTING CRACKDOWN

Last week, the House Elections Committee held a hearing and recommended passage of HB 2020, which aims to remove non-U.S. citizens from Kansas voter rolls. Proponents, led by Chair Representative Pat Proctor (R-Leavenworth) and supported by groups like the Opportunity Solutions Project and Heritage Action for America, argue the bill strengthens election integrity by requiring the Kansas DMV to submit quarterly reports on residents with temporary driver’s licenses. The Secretary of State would use these reports to cross-check voter rolls, remove noncitizens, and notify them of reinstatement options upon proof of citizenship.

Critics, including Davis Hammet of Loud Light and the ACLU of Kansas, warned of inaccuracies, privacy risks, and undue burdens on voters. They argue that the process could lead to disenfranchisement as the burden of proof shifts to individuals flagged for removal. Rep. Alexis Simmons (D-Topeka) raises similar concerns about privacy and administrative strain.

Proponents countered the measure simply formalizes practices in place for years, ensuring public trust in elections. In hearing, the Secretary of State reported identifying 171 potential matches between voter rolls and DMV records last year, but many required further review to confirm their accuracy. The debate underscores the ongoing tension between securing elections and protecting voter access and privacy.

LAWMAKERS EYE FUTURE OF HOUSING TAX CREDITS

Last week, the House and Senate Commerce committees met twice jointly to assess economic development programs and evaluate the use of tax credits for affordable housing. On Jan. 22, the Department of Commerce delivered updates on its initiatives, emphasizing key accomplishments:

- Economic growth: $3.5 billion in capital investment, 34 new companies through the PEAK program, and $228.2 million in payroll creation.
- Program impact: The HPIP program generated $7.3 billion in economic activity. The Rural Opportunity Zone program expanded to 4,386 members. The Job Creation Fund added $353 million in investments and 693 jobs, yielding a $40.97 return for every dollar spent.
- Apprenticeships: Kansas climbed to 29th in the nation for apprenticeship participation, with 4,479 apprentices enrolled.
- Grants and credits: The Community Development Block Grant Program awarded $13 million in grants. Businesses benefited from $4.1 million in Community Service Program tax credits.

On Jan. 23, the Legislative Division of Post Audit reviewed a 2022 state tax credit program designed to promote low-income housing development. While the program helps developers reduce costs and offer lower rents by matching federal tax credits, auditors caution it could cost Kansas $250 million over a decade. In 2023, $25.1 million in credits supported 24 projects to create nearly 2,200 affordable housing units. However, at this point, none of the credits have been claimed, as the projects remain under construction.

The Commerce committees debated the challenge of addressing statewide housing shortages without jeopardizing the state's financial stability. Lawmakers pledged to explore alternatives to balance affordable housing needs with sound fiscal management.

These committee meetings highlighted strides in economic growth and job creation while underscoring the complexity of balancing innovation with fiscal responsibility.

As a partner at Foulston Siefkin, Eddie represents clients in matters before state regulatory commissions, courts, and local government bodies. He has built and maintained relationships with key individuals – including lobbyists, elected and appointed officials, and staff members – that prove valuable in advancing clients' interests and issues. Drawing on his experience as a regional government affairs attorney for AT&T in Chicago, he helps clients navigate the maze of federal policies and agencies, advises on how processes work in Washington, and provides introductions to those who can help them accomplish their goals.
