PROFILE

Serving as Vice-Chair of Foulston's Wichita Transactional Group, Trish Voth's 27-year law practice includes two dedicated areas: (1) she heads up Foulston's solar, wind, BESS, and electric energy practice; and (2) she is also a leader in the firm's real estate practice.

TYPICAL CLIENTS?

- Project and property developers, managers, investors, lenders, property owners, and leasing directors rely on Trish for practical, strategic legal advice, effective negotiation, and skilled agreement drafting.
- In-house counsel and deal or national counsel routinely trust Trish to serve as local counsel or deal real estate counsel; to deliver Kansas insight, local law and custom advice, and opinions; and to outsource legal and diligence support.
- Counties and cities tap Trish for advanced support with land use-topics, proposals, regulation, and agreements.

DISTINCTIVENESS; CLIENT TESTIMONIALS:

"We love working with Trish. She is knowledgeable about the politics and local opinion in the area and has creative ideas on resolving issues."

"Patricia is super responsive and solution-oriented."

"Star Individual" is her most recent accolade as the only Kansas real estate or energy lawyer bestowed this highest-available lawyer ranking from Chambers USA, reserved for lawyers receiving exceptional recommendations from others. Trish has been ranked by Chambers USA for 18 years and by Best Lawyers for 15 years. At the national level, the American City Business Journals included her on a list of 100 Women to Watch in the United States, and Trish has presented on energy, real estate, and lawyer ethics topics during several national conferences. Trish is a coordinator with both Lex Mundi North America's renewable energy group and American College of Real Estate Lawyers' climate impact group. Further, at the state and local level, she regularly speaks and supports industry and legal
